conservation of forests. Within the past month a Richmond audience listened with close attention to a clear statement of the situation by Mr. Gifford Pinchet, the brilliant Chief of the Department of Forestry, Governor Swanson has issued a proclamation, making March 39th Arbor Day in Virginia, and the colleges and schools should be preparing for its appropriate celebration. Virginia has not yet established the custom, which has become a perognized institution in many Northern and Western States, of Issuing an annual arbor and bird day publication for the use of the schools, but the annuals Issued by other States are very generously distributed to such libraries as ask for them. The State Library has compiled a list of topics on which material is available for use
